Mr. Corte, continuing, said that he had saved Mayor Shakespeare's life and the lives of Mesors, Parkinson, Wickliffe and other leaders.

Messrs. Parkinson. Wickliffe and other leaders. After the killing there was a determined resolution among certain of his countrymen to kill the mayor and all those who had had a hand in the butchery. Mr. Corte said he restrained their hands and told them if harm befell these gentlemen he would immediately denounce the perpetrators of the deed. The consul believed that an amicatle understanding of the introglio was close at hand. He was not surprised at the action of the grand jury in returning his letter, and said that he could expect nothing more from the jury whose chairman as president of the Cotton Exchange indured the killing. Relative to his departure for Italy Mr. Corte said he could not leave until he had heard from Mr. Poma. This would probably be in a day or so.

COLUMBIA'S CELEBRATION.

One Hundredth Anniversary of the South Carolina Institute.

WADE HAMPTON'S ELOQUENT ADDRESS.

He Says His Public Career is Ended-The City Profusely Decorated-Grand Reyiew of the State Troops.

COLUMBIA, S. C., May 13 .- Columbia's carnival, the celebration of the one hundredth anniversary of the South Carolina Institute in this city pened to-day.

The event, which is most notable in Columbia's history, is being celebrated as becomes a city which has been for the past fifty years a political heart of the South, and for generations a noted educational and social centre. The decorations surpassed anything of the kind ever seen in this part of the South. PROFUSE DECORATIONS.

The national colors were used almost universally, and public buildings and prominent bustness houses flaunted the red, white and blue over ness houses flaunted the red, white and blue over portal, and around pillar was wound great United States dags, while from capital and cornice tri-colored streamers hung in graceful folds, and gay banners fluttered.

County arches had been erected by many counties of the State. These arches, which were handsome structures, built of wood, spanned the broad, main thoroughfare of the city, and were handsomely decorated with bunting and flags. On the sides were scrolls bearing information of the population and industries and the advantages offered immigrants by the seyeral counties.

nd the advantages of free imangles of everal counties.

In the early morning a misty rain began to rip, but it lasted only long enough to lay the nst. The incoming trains brought thousands if visitors, both civilian and militiamen, and the treets were thronged at an early hour. WADE HAMPTON THE ORATOR.

At 11 o'clock to-day the grand military and civic parade formed at the State Capitol and marched to the fair grounds, where General Wade Hampten, orator of the day, delivered an address. General Hampton was escorted by hundreds of Confederate survivors wearing paimetto badges. He was introduced to the immense audience by Mayor W. F. MacMaster in a beautiful address.

General Hampton's oration was in the main historical. He recurred to the early settlement of Columbia and to the fact that at Granby, three miles below the present city, "Light Horse Harry" Lee, father of General Robert E. Lee, and Peter Johnston, father of General Joseph E. Johnston, distinguished themselves in skirmishes with the British during the Revolutionary war.

HIS FOLITICAL CAREER ENDED.

Columbia, said he, was a village until 1805, when an act of incorporation making it a town was passed. The original seal which was used at that time was to-day represented by General Hampton to Mayor Macmaster. General Hampton traced the growth of the city and its remarkable recovery in common with all South Carolina from the ravages of war. The city now with its beautiful streets, superb location and the completion of one of the finest water powers in America was on the eve of an era of prosperity such as her people had never dreamed of.

dreamed of.
General Hampton closed with a touching allusion to his devotion to his native State, mingled with whose soil was the dust of six generations of his kindred. His political career was ended; his public work was at last finished. General Hampton during the address received an ovation such as is seldom accorded to man. To-morrow morning there will be a grand review of the State troops and to-morrow might the trades' display will surpass any ever attempted in this section.

BURNING OF THE WORK TRAIN.

Further Particulars of How the Passengers

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 12.—A letter dispatch from Austin. Penn., gives the following of the burning of a work-train in the forest fives near there. The train had proceeded a few miles into the hemlocks, when the intense heat and binding smoke of forest conflagration put an end to its further progress. An attempt was then made to reverse the course of the train and retreat from the approaching fire, but it was too late. The train was overtaken by the flames. All hands jumped from the cars and sought safety in a creek that flowed hear by. Then came an unexpected phase of the thrilling experience of the men. The water of the creek was bouling, and those who leaved from the moving train found themselves in water scalding hot. Then the terror-stricken fire-fighters crouched while the tormdo of fire and smoke rolled over and beyond them. All but five of the party escaped in this way, but the heat was so intense that several of the number were badly burned.

Superintendent Badger did not jump into the BUFFALO, N. Y., May 12.-A letter dispatch

Buperintendent Badger did not jump into the Superintendent Badger did not jump into the boiling creek. He ran shead of the flames and was overtaken and burned to a crisp. Four other men who followed him shared his fate. A rescuing party went out after the fire-fighters. Thirty of the men were found so badly disabled that they were lying about blistered pruised and suffering intensely. Fifteen of them are so badly burned that several are expected to die. Bearch was made yesterday for the missing members of the party, but the only body found was that of Badger. It is believed that the missing men have perished.

The Stewart Will Case.

New York, May 13.—The trial of the case of Sarah Branagh against William P. Smith, involving the claims of the alloged Irish heirs of the late A. T. Stewart, was begun before Judge Wallace in the Supreme Court to-day. General Butler and William H. Secore appeared for the plaintiffs and Elihu Root and Joseph H. Choate represented the Stewart estate.

Long arguments were submitted on both sides, the defense contending that Sarah Branagh, the mother of Mary Branagh, Stewart's cousin, being an alien could not as an heir acquire a right to any interest in the Stewart estate. Judge Wallace seemed inclined to take this view of the case, but gave General Butler until to-morrow afternoon to hand in his brief, and said he would decide the question Friday and said he would decide the question Friday

Dr. Graves Denles the Charge.

Dr. Graves Denies the Charge.

Denver, Cor... May 13.—Dr. Graves made a statement to-day in which he most empathically denies that he ever admitted sending the bottle of whisky to Mrs. Barnaby. He says he did not know he was accused of poisoning Mrs. Barnaby until he reached Denver. He has employed Judge Furman as his counsel and under his advice Pr. Graves has refused to appear before the grand jury. Judge Belford, one of the counsel in the famous Millington case, has been employed by the friends of Mrs. Barnaby. It is extremely probable that the grand jury will indiet Dr. Graves, in which case Judge Furman says he will demand an immediate trial.

Ancient Order of Hibernians,

Ancient Order of Hibermans.

New York, May 13.—The afternoon session of the National Convention of the Ancient Order of Hibermians was taken up wholly with the presentation and discussion of the report of the committee on constitutional revision. The radical changes in the constitution are in relation to the sick benefit payments and the character of the members of the order. Medical examination not heretofore in vogue is introduced.

A long discussion followed, after which the convention adjourned until to-morrow morning.

Pool Tournament.

CHICAGO, May 13—Albert G. Powers and Albert D'Oro to-night opened the continuous pool tournament for $1.000 for the Brunswick-Ralke-Collendar emblem and the championship of America. The game is 600 points, 200 points to be played each night until the tournament is over. Both men played a brilliant game. D'Oro wound up the game in the twenty-seventh inning. ## POLITICS IN THE PENINSULA.

Much Anxiety Felt in Germany Over a Threatened Revolution.

THE ATTACK ON THE CZAROWITZ.

His Birthday to be Celebrated Next Monday With Great Eclat-A Bitter Attack on Russia-Foreign Events of Interest.

London, May 13 .- A Berlin dispatch says that the chief anxiety in Government circles about the situation in Portugal is not on account of the financial disarrangement, but the probability of polit'cal revolution. It is felt in Germany that the substitution of the republican for monarchical institutions in Portugal would be greatly to the benefit of France by making Portugal an ally of the French republic. The French Government has lately given strong evidence of sympathy with the Portuguese, and France has been openly warned by the British not to encourage republican plots in the Peninsula.

The French would naturally like to see the royal house of Portugal, one of the last reigning branches of the Bourbon family.driven from the throne, and this feeling has been intensified since the avowal of complicity in the Boulanger plot by the Comte de Paris, whose daughter is Queen of Portugal. It is not believed, however, either in Berlin or London, that Spain, now under a Conservative ministry, would tolerate the existence of a republic in Portugal which would be made the base for a similar movement at Madrid. On the other hand, it is suggested that upon Spanish interference after the establishment of a de facto republican government at Lisbon. France would at once interfere in behalf of the Portuguese. Altogether the situation causes no end of speculation as to possibilities, and some recall in this connection that the pretext for the Franco-Prussian war was found in the affairs of the Spanish peninsula.

THE ATTACK ON THE CZABOWITZ.

A St. Petersburg correspondent says that Spanish peninsula.

THE ATTACK ON THE CZAROWITZ.

A St. Petersburg correspondent says that Prince George, of Greece, is again in high favor with the Czar on account of his defense of the Czarowitz against the attack of the Japanese. Prince George has been under a cloud with the Russian Court, owing to the unfortunate wrestling bout which resulted in injury to the Czar's second son, the Grand Duke George; but now that has been atoned for by having saved the life of the Czarowitz.

The birthday of the Czarowitz will be celebrated with more than usual eclat next Monday. Later advices from Shanghai are that the would-be assassin belonged to a class whose importance has been much diminished by the overthrow of the old regime in Japan, and who, for that reason, is very bitter against Europeans, whom they hold responsible for the charges. There is no suspicion that the crime was in any way prompted by European conspirators. The fact is that the advocates of the political change in Russia look forward with hope to the accession of the Czarowitz, as he is believed to be an entirely different man from his father and inclined to Western methods. The incident will probably make no change in the programme for Siberia, although the journey of the Czarowitz may be postponed until he is convalescent.

The Boursen Journal, of Hausburg, voices a

The Boursen Journal, of Hamburg, voices a prevalent sentiment in a bitter attack on Russia, and also on the German financiers who supply Russia with funds. The writer says that the German bankers who reply to Russia's call for loans and furnish that country with the sinews of development are disloyal to Germany, as they are enabling Russia to prepare for the war with Germany that must come sconer or later. It has been arranged between the London municipal and the German imperial authorities that the Kaiser William will be received in the Guld Hall on July 10th.

MUSIC FESTIVAL.

The Closing Evening-Mr. Marshall Receives

The rain last evening perhaps kept many from the last performance of the May Festival, but the attendance was nevertheless large and the concert was, taken all in all, the best

Miss Gertrude Edmands, with her rich con-

Miss Gertrude Edmands, with her rich contraits voice, made her first appearance during the festival, and so did the well-known basso, Mr. Whitney. Both were received with evident pleasure, and they, with Miss Jennie Patrick Walker, the soprano, and Mr. Parker, the tenor, formed the quartette for the "Stabat Mater," which was the feature of the evening. The chorus sang better than ever before and was liberally applauded. The last number was the beautiful ballad, "Fair Ellen," before the rendition of which Mr. Victor Herbert, the conductor of the orchestra, came to the front of the stage and announced that he had a statement to make. He then produced the front of the stage and announced that he had a statement to make. He then produced a beautiful silver-tipped baton, and on behalf of the chorus he presented it to Mr. Clarance Marshall, who was the leading spirit of the festival; who secured the guarantors and engaged the artists, who trained the chorus, and in fact, attended to all the details necessary make the affair a success. Mr. Herbert

Ladies and gentlemen,—With your kind permission I will say a few words to Mr. Marshall on behalf of the Festival chorus.

Mr. Marshall, the ladies and gentlemen of the chorus have requested me to perform a very pleasant duty. In recognition of your faithful and efficient efforts to advance music in Richmond and in token of their high admiration of the results obtained, they wish me to present you with this baton. I am sure you fully deserve this honor, and I desire no further proof than the excellent work the chorus has done as we have all heard. May this festival be only the first of many which shall establish an everlasting love for our beautiful art in Richmond.
